TAFT'S MESSAGE TO THE NORTHWEST

Political Arguments Are Submitted For The Rural Voters Of Northwest

GOOD MARKETS PREVAIL

Republican Party IsNot Res ponsible For Good Crops But For The American Market.

PROSPERITY IS AT OUR DOOR

BEVERLY, MASS., OCT. 24.—President Taft tonight made public a special appeal to governors of Minnesota and northwest to remain true to their Republican beliefs of past campaigns. The political arguments submitted for consideration of rural voters were advanced in a letter which the president sent to Governor Eberhardt of Minnesota stating that while the Republican party had not made the sun to shine or the crops to grow, it had been responsible for the prevailing good markets. He declared that the contest was between the Republican and Democratic parties. The letter says in part:

Should Maintain System.

"The people of your state are vitally interested in the maintenance of our present economic system. Their welfare is dependent upon the continuance of a protective tariff, and although at times by appeal to their prejudice, they may be diverted from a clear perception of their interest, I am content that in the end their common sense will enable them to see the fallacy of newly-dressed rostrums which in the past they have rejected. I am sure they must realize that this contest is between the Republican and Democratic parties.

Northwest is Prosperous.

"The men and women of the northwest country have a special interest in Republican success this year. They are sharing in the general prosperity of the nation, and the continuance of growth of this prosperity are in large degree dependent upon Republican success next month. The Republican party is not responsible for good crops. It does not make the sun to shine or the grass to grow, but it is responsible for enactment of laws which make it possible, if the crops are good, that there shall be an American market for them and that they shall be sold at good prices to those who have the means to buy them.

Democrats Would Change Tariff.

"There has never been a time in our history when the farm products of the northwest would purchase as much as they do today. Prosperity is just at our door. The Republican party bids it welcome, with the promise that the economic basis which has brought about our wonderful industrial development giving steady employment at high wages to our mechanics and artisans shall be maintained. The Democratic platform promises a change in our tariff system whose effect would be to halt manufacturing enterprise, throw out of employment thousands of wage earners, and destroy the home markets now enjoyed by the American farmer. No reforming legislation could neutralize or mitigate the paralysis which would follow.

Welfare of Farmer Vital.

"The welfare of the farmer is vital to the whole country. Republican policies cannot fail to commend themselves to the farmer of the northwest. It is difficult to see how, with the threat to business prosperity involved in Democratic success at the polls, who lives by the soil can do otherwise than give his full and hearty support to the continuation of the protective system under which he has prospered and enjoyed the blessings of a government which safeguards him in his life, liberty and prosperity.

Department of Agriculture.

"The Republican party is responsible for the organization and growth of our splendid department of agriculture. The power of the man and the acre to produce is being increased all over the land. The soils, our roads, the weather, and animals, the plants, the forests, our foods, our insect friends and enemies are being studied from the farmer's standpoint by more than 2,000 scientists in the department of agriculture, which has grown in helpfulness every day since 1898.

What Closed Factories Would Do.

"It does not require the eye of a witch to see that closed factories in Massachusetts and Ohio mean a diminished demand for the farm products of the northwest. We cannot strike down the industries of one section without bringing disaster to all the people. It is not a progressive policy in any true sense to be hostile to the prosperity of any part of the country.

"What makes men happy? What furnishes shoes and clothes and good, wholesome food to the family of father and mother and children, but prosperous times in which labor is in high demand, wages are good, sales are plenty, prices are normal and everybody is sharing in the good times? Republican success means that our people will come together in amity and make the best use of this country for the promotion of general prosperity and the securing and encouragment of individual happ-

ARE EGGS TWO YEARS OLD "DECOMPOSED"?

FROZEN EGGS NOW OCCUPY ATTENTION OF HIGHEST TRIBUNAL

Members of Supreme Court of United States Must Determine Whether Eggs In Question Are "Decomposed" Under Meaning of Pure Food Law.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 24.—Four hundred and forty-three cans of frozen eggs of the vintage of 1910 occupied the attention today of the supreme court of the United States. The members of that tribunal were engaged in determining whether the eggs were decomposed. Ralph S. Rounds, attorney for the claimant of the eggs, argued that the eggs were not "decomposed" within the meaning of the pure food law, and told the court that the case was the most important of all five pure food cases which had come before it for consideration, because it would decide whether the pure food law was to be interpreted according to the view of the "young men in the department of agriculture," or "according to common sense."

He said that the common sense way of interpreting the law was to give to the word "decomposed" the meaning of "unwholesomely decomposed," and not make the decomposition depend upon the number of bacillus coli that could be counted in an egg.

Mr. Rounds informed the court that there were four grades of eggs, "current use," "seconds, "checks" and "spots."

"Do you mean to say that there are four grades of strictly fresh eggs?" Justice Holmes inquired. His confidence in eggs was restored by a negative answer.

The attorney explained that the government had first charged that the product was "filthy, decomposed or putrid," but now only claimed that it was "decomposed."

"You say that is all that is charge," Justice Van Devanter with a decided emphasis on the all.

The court will continue its study of the egg tomorrow.

WILL START BACK TO WASHINGTON TODAY

Will Take up Labors of a Busy Winter — Addresses Teachers in Portland.

Poland Springs, Me., Oct. 24.—After a vacation of nearly two months President Taft will start back to Washington tomorrow to take up the labors of what he expects will prove a busy winter.

His plans for the return trip were changed tonight and instead of taking a motor ride of 175 miles from Poland Springs over slippery, muddy roads, he will board his private car at Danville Junction five miles away and start his journey southward. The president is not due in Washington until Sunday morning for he has a speaking engagement Saturday at Cambridge Springs, Pa., and will turn west tomorrow afternoon at Boston to keep it.

Mr. Taft had a quiet day here. He played golf this morning and late today went to Portland to address the Maine teachers' institution. He got back to Poland Springs in time for dinner.

The Maine teachers gave the president a rousing welcome.

He said he had learned the value of teaching in the Philippines when he was governor-general. He told of the importation of 1,000 American teachers and their successful efforts not only to instruct the Filipino children but to show thousands of Filipino men and women how to teach.

The president drew a parallel between the teacher and government employes and said both should be taken care of after they had spent the active years of their lives in efforts to serve.

SEEK CLOSER RELATION.

New York, Oct. 24.—The development of closer relations between this country and France is the plan for the France-American committeed, articles of incorporation for which were signed today by Justice Grenbaum in the state supreme court. A number of prominent men are incorporators, the list includes Robert Bacon, former ambassador to France; President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university and Frederick R. Coudert, legal representative in this city of the French consulate.

MARSHALL IN OREGON.

Albany, Ore., Oct. 24.—Governor Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency, asserted today that the political parties which attempted to use the method of ancient Roman leaders in handling the people surely would bring disaster upon the government of the United States.

Governor Marshall said that over-capitalized political leaders were becoming a great menace to the welfare of the country as over-capitalized corporations.

ON WAY TO WASHINGTON.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Secretary of War H. L. Stimson, passed through Chicago today on his way to Washington after a visit to the northwestern states.

LAFOLLETTE WILL SUPPORT WILSON

WILL BACK POLICIES OF DEMOCRAT IF HE PROVES A PROGRESSIVE

Looks for Wilson's Election---Criticizes Theodore Roosevelt's Action In Forcing Himself as Progressive Presidential Candidate.

SUPERIOR, WIS., OCT. 24.—Senator LaFollette spoke here before a great crowd tonight. Shifting for a time from state financial to national issues, the speaker said that if Woodrow Wilson proved himself a progressive that he would support his policies.

"It would not surprise me much if Wilson is elected," the senator said, "and if he should be and shows himself a progressive, I not only intend to support his polictis, but to use my influence as much as I can in the senate to do likewise. On the other hand, should he prove weak, and frail to follow the path blazed by progressives. I shall denounce him with equal fervor."

Senator LaFollette declared that no political party in the history of the country had been built up on disappointments or individuals. He charged Colonel Roosevelt with having been back of a conspiracy having for its purpose to bring LaFollette out as the Progressive candidate, only to shift him and put Roosevelt in his place.

NAGEL SCORES "THIRD TERMERS"

Contest Only Between Republican and Democratic Parties.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 24.—"This contest as always is between the Republican and Democratic parties" Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel said at a meeting in a court house here tonight.

The only question the third party has not yet fully decided is how much they are going to hurt their old friends—whether they are really going to hurt the Republican party a lot by voting for Wilson outright, or whether they are only going to hurt it a little by voting for the third party candidate."

Secretary Nagel in speaking of the bolt of the "third party" at Chicago said:

"That if they had been successful in winning the nomination there would have been no third party. They would have been shipwrecked on the same principal that had denied General Grant a third term. They had talked about a rule of the people but when the people did rule all the answer they could make was by yelling in the convention 'we want Teddy; we want Teddy.'"

TARIFF ON THE IRON AND STEEL PRODUCTS

Taft In Letter to Hardware Associations Discusses Tariff

ENDORSES COMMISSION

RAPS POLITICAL TINKERING

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 24.—A letter from President Taft to the American Hardware Manufacturers' association and the National Hardware association was read at today's session of the association's convention.

The president said in part:

"I am very glad to send a message of greeting to the members of the American Hardware Manufacturers' association and the National Hardware association on the occasion of their annual joint convention. One of the members of your association wrote me the other day that what this country needs most is industrial peace. There can be no such peace in t he absence of national prosperity and I am glad to believe that the members of your association are doing their full share to welcome the prosperity which is just at our doors by maintaining our present economic basis and by the encouragement of business expansion and progress through legitimate use of capital.

Believe in Tariff Board.

"I am a firm believer in a tariff board or tariff commission. I do not contend that the tariff can be taken out of politics in the sense that it will never be made the subject of political controversy. Men differ radically as to the economical wisdom of a protective tariff or a tariff for revenue only, and that must always be the subject of political discussion. But there is a means of taking the ascertainments of facts away from a tribunal like the ways and means committee, which is necessarily hurried in its conclusions and necessarily lacking in the thoroughness and temper which are essential to reach impartial conclusions.

Why He Vetoed Bill.

"Probably no industries affected by the tariff need scientific and impartial conclusions more than those which are represented in your convention. In my message of August 14, last, returning to the congress without my approval the bill to revise the metals schedule, I pointed out that in this schedule iron and steel as primary products are less than one-third in value of the subject matter covered by the schedule.

"I pointed out further that foundry and machine shop products, which are secondary products of the iron and steel industry, are made by more than 13,000 competing establishments with an invested capital of more than a billion and a half dollars, with more than half a million wage earners employed and producing nearly a billion and a quarter dollars in value of products annually. Every dollar of this capital and every workman employed in the industry was directly affected by the bill, and I could not find, either in the report of the committee on ways and means of the house or, to any extent, in the discussion of the schedule, that serious consideration had been given to the effect of this revision on this particular branch of the industry, and the same thing is true of more than two-thirds of the industries covered by the schools.

Foreign Trade Expansion.

"The expansion of our foreign trade would seem to demand that a transfer to the free list, like the one made in the bill of such an enormous range of undetermined products and the opening of the best market in the world to free and uninstricted competition should not be made without not at the same time at least securing, as in the case now, of specified agricultural implements, the privilege of a like free entry into the markets of our competitors. I refer to these facts to bring home to the members of your association some of the dangers of ill-advised political tinkering with business.

"I vetoed the bill which would have spelled ruin to you, because I was unwilling to approve legislation which vitally affected not only millions of workingmen and the families dependent upon them, but hundreds of millions of dollars worth of stocks of goods in the hands of store-keepers, and distributors generally, without first providing for a careful and disinterested inquiry into the conditions of the whole industry.

Business Not Football of Politics.

"So, I say, we must not make legitimate business the football of politics. We must have investments from which to secure a large wages fund, which is needed to support the wage earners. We must inspire in the business men who control those investments the confidence that they will not be driven out of business. Let us put our shoulders together in a movement to promote the business prosperity of the country by frowning down those attacks that

SENATOR HOKE SMITH IS WILSON'S GUEST

GEORGIA SENATOR ADDRESSES STUDENTS OF PRINCETON

Princeton, Oct. 24.—Governor Woodrow ilson had as his guest today Senator Hoke Smith of eGorgia who tonight made a speech in the Alexander hall to the students of the Princeton university.

The governor was anxious to hear Senator Smith and was greatly tempted to attend the meeting, but feared his presence might cause him to go on the stump.

The governor gave out for publication two telegrams, one of which he sent to a rally at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., and another to a western newspaper which was issuing a harvest edition.

"We all worship at the shrine of King Corn," read the latter message. "He is in a sense the master of our lives and our fortunes. His storehouse of golden grain is a great part of our national treasury as well as of our means of life. If the country could ever year realize, if only on a single day, the vital fibres that connect it with the farm, the many things that lie hidden in the furrows of the fields we should no doubt think more than we do now and think to better purpose about the effect of national policy and of all plans of national development upon the farmer and the workers in the open countries. We need the enlightenment of such thoughts."

In his telegram to Wesleyan, where he was once an instructor, the governor wired Prof. Robert H. Fife, as follows:

"My warm greetings to my Wesleyan friends assembled in Democratic rally this evening. It is delightful and re-assuring to see the young men of the country gathering to champion the cause of free government as against special interests."

SPEAKS IN DEFENSE OF THE ADMINISTRATION

Attorney General Wickersham Speaks of Country's Increasing Prosperity.

Cambridge, Ohio., Oct. 24.—Declaring that we are today in the flood of an increasing and widening prosperity, Attorney General Wickersham delivered an addresse here tonight.

"The administration under which this prosperity has come is standing before the people for re-election," he said.

Mr. Wickersham said that "but for Colonel Roosevelt there would be no possible doubt of the continuation of this prosperity, for nobody contends that the Democrats alone could bring about the defeat of the national Republican ticket."

He charged that Colonel Roosevelt did not expect to win but hoped to gain strength enough to pull the Progressive party together and win in 1916.

The Republicans of the country, the thoughtful, prosperous workers in the mills and on the farms, can defeat this bold conspiracy and continue growing national prosperity only by voting to re-elect to the presidency William Howard Taft."

PRISON WAREHOUSE BURNS.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 24.—Fire tonight destroyed the binder twine warehouse inside the walls of the state prison here. The building contained more than 50 0tons of stock, and as the state carries no insurance, the loss will be heavy. The blaze is thought to have been of incendiary origin. The prisoners were locked in their cells when the fire broke out and made no demonstration.

While nothing definite could be learned from Warden Simpson concerning the origin of the blaze, the prison guards tonight expressed the belief that convicts had set the warehouse on fire in revenge for the punishment inflicted upon them as a result of the prison riots several weeks ago.

OMAHA, NEB., OCT. 24.—John H. Owen, for twenty years a chief operator for the Western Union Telegraph company, was tonight killed by a street car within a block of his home. Mrs. Wallis Identifies Letters Which Were Between McNamara and Officials of Union Who Are Now on Trial---Will Be Read Later.

McNamara, identified at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today many letters received and sent from the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' headquarters ust before McNamara's arrest on April 22, 1911.

The letters were between McNamara and various officials of the union who are now on trial. Mrs. Wallis denicd that J. B. McNamara who blew up the Los Angeles building, was about the headquarters much. She said she had seen him only twice after he was being searched for. The witness also denied that any nitro-glycerine cans or packages of dynamite were kept about the office.

None of the letters were read. District Attorney Miller said probably two days yould be devoted to the reading of the letters. It was these letters, the government charges, which contain evidence that all of the forty-five defendants showed their knowledge of the conspiracy.

Andrew J. Dilling of Cincinnati, testified concerning the manufacture of a fibroid case for J. J. McNamara and which the government charges was used for carrying nitro glycerine on passenger trains.

Henry W. Legleitner, Denver, former member of the union's executive board is charged specifically with carrying the case from Pittsburg, Pa., to union headquarters at Indianapolis.

POSTMASTERS MUST TAKE EXAMINATIONS

Appointments to All Class A Offices Will be Made by Civil Service Commission.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Plans for the administration of the executive order of President Taft placing all fourth class postmasters under civil service was announced today.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has divided the 36,615 offices affected by the order into two classes, A and B.

Class A will embrace all post offices at which the compensation of postmasters is $500 a year or more; while class B will include offices at which the compensation is less than $500.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has recommended that all postmasters, irrespective of class, be placed under civil service.

BECKER IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

TAKES VERDICT CALMLY

ELECTRIC CHAIR PROBABLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Police Lieutenant Charles Becker was found guilty at midnight of murder in the first degree by the jury which has been trying him for instigating the death of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

The verdict read, "Murder in the first degree," and was pronounced exactly at mid-night. Becker was remanded for sentence by Justice Goff until Oct. 30.

Mrs. Becker, sitting outside the door of the court room, fell in a swoon when the verdict was announced.

Becker stood at the bar as the verdict was given, shoulders squared and head erect. Not a muscle moved when the last juror had answered the call, the justice instructed the clerk to take the defendants pedigree. The questions were handed Becker on a slip of paper. As he read, Becker said:

"Forty-two years old; American citizen; born in Germany; address 3229 Auduburn avenue, lieutenant of police; married; Protestant; mother living; habits temperate; never convicted before."

The convicted man's voice fell almost to a whisper as he ceased speaking. Then he turned and followed by a jail warden, walked with rapid step up the aisle of the court room and disappeared through the door leading over the "bridge of sighs" to the Tombs.

The penalty for murder in the first degree, is the electric chair. An appeal from the verdict goes directly to the court of appeals and acts as a stay of execution.

When the jurors left the court room they went directly to their homes. They were under the mandate of Justice Goff not to "communicate the nature of what had taken place in the jury room."

Becker's conviction comes exactly 100 days, almost to the hour, after the murder of Rosenthal. It was in the early morning hours of July 16th, that the gambler was shot to death in front of the Hotel Metropole. On July 21st, the grand jury took up the case; on the 29th, it indicted Becker. On August 5th, he was arraigned and pleaded not guilty; on August 20th, he was re-indicted. His trial was set for September 21st, but a stay was granted till Oct. 7th, by Justice Bischoff to enable a commission to take testimony at Hot Springs, Ark., on October 7th, the trial began. It lasted seventeen days. Ninety-eight witnesses testified; their testimony being placed on 2,745 typewritten pages.

Becker's destiny was delivered into the jury's hands at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, after a three hour charge by Justice Goff which Becker characterized as distinctly unfair and "a thin-veiled summing up for the state," and upon which his counsel declined to comment. To do so he said would place him in contempt of court.

Stripped of its legal verbiage, the charge in effect was a ruling that the guilt or innocence of the prisoner rested almost solely upon the debatable point as to whether Sam Schepps was an accomplice to the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler. Schepps, when arrested at Hot Springs, styled himself the "keystone of the arch." Events showed he spoke truer than he knew.

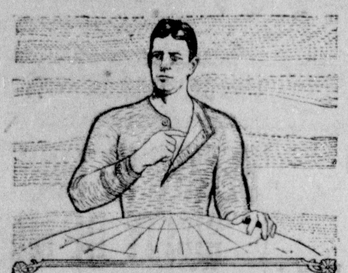

The court was doubtful as to Schepps status and declined to guide the jurors in a decision. What he did instruct them to do was to return a verdict of first degree murder or second degree murder or to acquit the defendant. By far the greater part of his instructions dealt with murder in the first degree the penalty for which is the electric chair.

The white haired justice spoke in a monotone tone, but with incisive deliberateness." It is not claimed by the prosecution that Becker's hand did actually kill Rosenthal," he said at a crucial point, "It is claimed that he requested and directed that the killing should be done and as I have already instructed the jury, Becker, in law, must be held responsible for the acts of everyone who acted in pursuance of his request or instructions.

"It is important here that I should direct you as to the law governing case now presented where a person is claimed not to have done the actual killing, but to have inspired it and instructed it. Under the law Becker stands charged principally with the commission of the crime of murder on the ground that he counselled and advised it."

The court added that the main witnesses against the defendant were, without a doubt, "accomplices," and he so branded Rose, Vallon and Webber. Schepps' relation he would not define.

Mallory brothers orchestra supplied excellent music which pleased all and was applauded roundly.

Judge Sherman, candidate for the senatorship, W. J. Butler, candidate for the legislature and Hugh Green were the speakers.

Butler Stated Position.

Mr. Butler said in brief: "I am glad to be here and look you all in the face. Morgan and Sangamon counties are naturally bound together in all things politically and work for the interest of each other. I am a grandson of Gen. Jno. A. McClernand and so related to some of your people here and have a kindred tie. I have the title of colonel and it is said it is because I once drew a swort in a raffle but I have a better reason. In our land, public opinion rules and will always be the master. I have made a careful study of conditions and shall always be guided by what I feel to be right. Mr. Lyon, my colleague on the ticket is kept away by a quarantine as one of his children has diphtheria or he would be here. If we are elected we shall honestly do the will of our constitutents and endeavor in every possible way to conserve the welfare of the state." Mr. Butler said he would vote for Judge Sherman for the senatorship as long as Judge Sherman is a candidate.

Chairman Hildreth then introduced Hon. Andrew Russel as chairman of the meeting and he was received with long and hearty applause. He thanked the people for his reception and without farther words introduced Hon. L. Y. Sherman, who at once proceeded with his speech and for a clear cut, convincing argument, without abuse or defamation, it was strictly first class and no one in the audience could have gone away displeased.

Sherman Points to Party Record.

A few thoughts only are given. The speaker first hastily sketched the work of the Republican legislature during the last few years and the measures passed. The main ones adopted are: Civil service, by which the work of state employes is greatly improved and the persons spared the anxiety of losing their positions in case of a change of administration.

A primary law, which has been demanded so loudly by the people. The legislature adjourned without passing this and Governor Deneen called a special session for the purpose and while it is not as a whole all would like it is a step in the direction of direct rule of the whole people.

A child labor law by which children under sixteen are not permitted to work during school term but are required to attend school and men are appointed to watch and see that they obey the law.

A factory inspection law by which conditions of working men in places of danger and hardship are looked after.

Consolidation of state charities by which the control which was formerly vested in a large number of trustees who served without pay and could not give the matter proper attention is now vested in a small, compact body who devote their time to the work and see that the best interests of the state are conserved.

Illinois is Progressive.

Compensation act by which an employe may collect damages without a tedious process of law when he is injured. This act was not all the speaker would choose but it was a step in the right direction.

A safety appliance act which required factory owners and others to adopt the best and most improved methods to protect life and property. This especially applies to mines and places of danger and great strides have been made in this direction.

Other wise measures of less importance have been adopted and the record is one of which the party has no cause to be ashamed. Measured by its wise legislation and general acts Illinois is one of the most progressive states in the union. (Applause). We should neither be too far ahead nor too far behind; either is not desirable. The people of Illinois do rule as was shown by the last primary election that was held.

The National Convention.

Now about that national convention. I was there and did what I thought was right. On every question in which Mr. Roosevelt was involved I voted for him according to the instructions of my state at the primary election. Governor Deneen sat by me and we voted alike right straight through, doing what we felt to be the honorable thing. Now we all have our ideas regarding that convention and I shall not discuss the right or wrong of it. I have my opinion and you have yours but let me say the way to cure the evil, in the house is to stay inside and not go out and tear the house down. Illinois is clean politically because the people rule by law. If I am elected to the senate I mean to write a bill and urge its passage directing how national conventions shall be managed and delegates chosen by law and then there will be less trouble.

Strong for Protection.

The Democratic party would do many things they say for economy but as it is the state has little or no navy and but a small bit of an army and we can't have less. I am a protection Republican. I shall not undertake to go into schedules for that would take too long but the general principle may be discussed. The Democratic party says protection is unconstitutional and they would have tariff for revenue only. The workmen of the old world labor for one-half what ours get and if the bars are let down either our factories must close or else our men receive the same wages as those abroad. There is no denying that statement. Wool tariff is high and many be reduced but remove it and you soon destroy the sheep industry for Australia and South America with cheap land and labor can far undersell us. When it came to voting for free sugar the Louisiana delegates in congress voted for it. On free wool nine Democratic members from Texas stayed outside and only four voted for it.

The Democrats say the Altgeld administration only appropriated five millions and the Republicans fifteen millions but they neglect to add that Altgeld's officials stole five millions. I want them to tell me where they could cut down on what has been appropriated. The fact is the welfare of the people will best be guarded by the election of the national and state Republican ticket.

Attorney Hugh Green followed with a short speech but a very good one and the meeting adjourned and it is safe to say that never did a speaker creates a better impression or make a more gentlemanly, dignified address than Judge Sherman.

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR ALLEGED BOOKMAKERS.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Warrants for the arrest of James O'Leary, alleged gambler and bookmaker when horse racing was in its heyday, and Shelley Nesmith, a saloonkeeper, were sworn out today by Captain of Police J. Canghlin. O'Leary is charged with circulating literature in which he offers to receive wagers on t he coming national and state elections.

The police officer is in possession of a handbill bearing names and the addresses of the two men in which they offer various odds on the election. The police also have a witness in the person of man who placed a bet with Nesmith at his saloon.

ROOSEVELT IS IMPROVING.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Colonel Roosevelt felt so much better today that he put on his riding suit and surprised his family by appearing in the living room and saying he was going to have luncheon with the others.

The physicians spent a few minutes with their patient in t he morning and again later in the day, and found that his condition was improving. The most marked change was his increased strength and vitality. He attempted little work. In spite of his improved condition, he found that he was far from his usual strength and in the afternoon he became fatigued and slept for two hours.

He sent word to his secretary today to be at Sagamore Hill in the morning, and hopes to spend several hours in dictating letters and a part of the speech he expects to deliver in New York next week.

POPULAR VERDICT TO KILBANE.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 24.—While no decision was given at the conclusion of the ten round bout here tonight between Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, world's champion feather-weight, and Johnny Albanez of this city, the newspaper and popular verdict awarded the decision to Kilbane over his opponent.

COACH RESTS TEAM.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 24.—Coach Hawley surprised his first team men today by excusing all of them from practice. He made this departure from customary practice, he said, because he wanted to see if a period of rest would not do more for a team than steady practice.

FIGHT TWELVE ROUND DRAW.

Boston, Oct. 24.—Abe Attell, former feather-weight champion, and Jimmie Walsh of Boston, fought twelve two-minute rounds to a draw here tonight. Walsh insisted on the time of the rounds being shortened when Attell refused to get on the scales.

A Matter Of Daily Interest To You

ROBERTS' BLENDED COFFEE — The successful result of years of painstaking effort on our part to duplicate in the breakfast cup, regardless of cost or selling price, that wonderful flavor, pungency and strength of the now almost extinct genuine OLD GOVERNMENT JAVA & MOCHA and Mocha of a generation ago.

ROASTED WITH CARE—Roasting has played an important part in this achievement. Each berry is perfectly cooked through and through, regardless of the enormous shrinkage.

STEEL CUT INSTEAD OF GROUND—Instead of crushing or pounding Roberts' Blends of Coffee into an uneven mass, thereby impairing the strength and flavor, it passes, on each individual, order through a series of steel knives which granulate the berry into uniform, clean cut particles, producing a rich, clean brew of the FINEST COFFEE YOU EVER TASTED.

SOLD IN BULK—Roberts' Blended Coffee is sold by us exclusively in bulk, direct to you. By so doing we save you the expense of the can, label and labor, saying nothing of the advertising.

MUELLER'S MACARONI—Our sale on Mueller's Macaroni has been well nigh phenomenal and already satisfied customers are coming back and asking for more of the Mueller brand. It has a flavor, a general excellence which can be proven to any consumer.

SHOT WELL ON THE DAVIES FARM.

Prospecting Work is Still in Progress in Field East of Jacksonville.

A well on the Davies farm was shot about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and a good showing of oil was found. This well was sunk within fifteen feet of the first well on the farm, which furnished the best prospect when oil men from various fields were here a year ago. Just what the well shot yesterday will amount to cannot be told until the casing is put back and a pump applied. For a number of weeks some prospecting work has been in progress on the Davies farm, the lease having been taken over by Frank Byrns. Mr. Byrns, M. F. Dunlap, E. M. Tindall and J. A. Munson have had the work done with the end in view of definitely determining whether or not there is an oil field hereabouts.

The original well sunk on the Davies farm made a good showing of oil but it caved in. The well shot yesterday is within fifteen feet of the first well and that expectation was to break through the wall of the first well with the explosive and this was accomplished. Solidified nitro-glycerine was used in making the shot. The four men named have been proceeding with their investigations in a quiet way but it is their intention to settle the question about oil in the locality where they are work. They are certainly showing commendable zeal.

GAVE CLEVER SOCIAL.

Students Well Entertained by Political Burlesque at Christian Church.

One of the best attended and most cleverly gotten up student socials of the season was given last evening by the young people of the Central Christian church in the church parlors. The main entertainment of the evening consisted of a series of burlesque political demonstrations led by representatives of the Republican, Democratic and Progressive parties respectively. No sooner had the young people assembled in the large entertainment room until they were startled by the appearance of a monster G. O. P. elephant attended by an enthusiastic crowd of Taft supporters. The part of the president was taken by Earl Johnston, who cleverly brought forward the arguments for his support. This was followed by the Wilson demonstration. Ellis Spray as Woodrow Wilson, after a short introduction by Hume Whitacre, the national chairman, presented the standpoint of the loyal Democrats present. Everett Weeks as Theodore Roosevelt and Miss Eleanor Thompson as Jane Addams, then took the floor for the third party, while the Progressive chairman, the Rev. Clyde warsie, presided and kept order with the only original model of the big stick.

Refreshments were served from the respective party headquarters consisting of bull moose sandwiches, Democratic punch and elephant shaped cookies. The decorations were of flags, autumn leaves and paper Hallowe'en pumpkins. Music was furnished from time to time throughout the evening by the Sunday school orchestra.

The social committee of the Endeavor society, which had the entertainment in charge, consists of Misses Grace McCarty, Jennie Grassly, Edith Carlson and Helen Dinsmore, and Ellis Spray, Frank Markillie and Davis Martin.

Twice during the afternoon the jury communicated with Justice Goff. Once it asked for the stipulations made by the state with the four informers, Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps, and Schepps' letter to Rose written at Hot Springs, Ark., and expressing his willingness to testify. The second time the jury wanted the testimony of persons who talked with Schepps in Hot Springs. The first request was granted. The second denied, because portions of the testimony taken at Hot Springs had been excluded by the court. Schepps, in view of the court's charge, apparently was much in the juror's mind.

are engendered not by a real desire to eliminate abuses but by a wish to arouse in the people and unjust prejudice and take away from them their clear perception as to their real interest in encouraging the investment of capital, in commending its thrifty, wise, and lawful use to secure good and reasonable profit, and to enjoy the wide-spread influence of the prosperity that business thus encouraged is bound to show upon the people at large."

CONDITIONS POOR AT DRAKE.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—Prospects for putting the full strength of the Drake squad in the game against Simpson on Saturday have lessened with each day's practice this week. The men who played against Kansas have not rounded into the shape expected.

The initial line-up on Saturday probably will find substitutes playing the halves, at one end and at quarterback. The greatest loss to the team is Simmons, who usually is a factor in the teams. A muscle bruise has failed to heal quickly for the speedy half.

POSTPONE SHERIFF'S SALE.

New York, Oct. 24.—A plea against a sale of the personal effects of General Daniel E. Syckles the aged war veteran who was formerly ambassador to Spain was made today by his estranged wife to Sheriff Harburger, who agreed to a postponement of a threatened sale when Mrs. Syckles promised to pay, about November 10th, money necessary to satisfy a judgment against her husband.

The judgment which Mrs. Syckles now offers to satisfy is one obtained by the bank of the metropolis.

Choate, who held the chair last winter.

STATUTE OF COLUMBUS LABELLED WM. M'KINLEY

Chicago, Oct. 24.—A statute of Christopher Columbus which was one of the features of the world's fair here has been standing on one of the city parks labelled Wm. McKinley and admired as a portrait of the assassinated president. This was discovered today after the death of the sculptor, Frederick Boer in Florence, Italy, last week led to a search for his works in Chicago. The Columbus of the world's fair was one of them. It was traced and found in McKinley park. The hair had been chisled partly away, and the name of William McKinley placed on the pedestal.

THE HOT STORM

Is the happy combination of both methods. It heats by radiation---from every inch of its great surface; it warms the floor---just as efficiently as a Base Burner; and it circulates continuously a wonderful volume of pure and intensely heated air. "A Parlor Heating Plant." it has been termed---and the phrase fits it exactly. It works like a furnace, because it's built like one, heating all the rooms of a house---upstairs and downstairs---just as efficiently as a furnace.

And now note carefully this fact---no extra fuel is required to feed the Little Furnace. The hot air which it distributes is that which in the ordi- stove is shot up the chimney and wasted. The volume of this hot air has been proven by careful tests to be from 50 to 75 per cent. of all the heat generated from the coal.

ELECTION DAY NOT FAR DISTANT

Representatives to be Chosen in Forty-five States — Twenty-nine Governors Will be Elected.

Washington, Oct. 24.—One week from next Tuesday the voters in the forty-eight states of the union will express their preferences for president and vice president of the United States. In forty-five of the states representatives in the next congress —the sixty-third—will be named. Twenty-nine states will vote for governors and other state officers and [illegible] dozen other minor state officials are to be elected. Maine, Vermont, Arkansas and Georgia have held their state elections, but the two latter states will on Nov. 5, elect representatives in congress. Maine and Vermont have already chosen their congressmen as well as state officers.

The states that will elect governors are Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

The electoral disputes arising between the regular Republicans and the Progressives have been settled in practically all of the states. Confusion still exists, however, in regards to some of the state tickets. Straight Rebublican tickets have have been named in all of the states excepting one or two in the south. The Democrats have tickets in all of the states in which elections are to be held. The new third party has put in a separate ticket in all of the states in which the regular Republican nomineees were not satisfactory to the Progressives. The Socialists have named candidates for governor and other state officers in twenty-seven states. The Prohibition party has complete state tickets in twenty-one states. In addition, tickets of the Socialist Labor, Independence, Populist and other minor parsome of the states.

The Progressives, Socialists and Prohibitionists have nominated candidates for congress in many districts and in others labor unions or federations have indorsed Democrats or Republicans who are believed to be favorable to their cause.

The Progressives have named complete tickets for governor and other state officers in Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The Prohibitionists have named candidates for governor and other state officers in Connecticut, Delawere, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusettts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Nebraska, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The Socialists this year have nominated a candidate for governor of South Carolina, where for many years there has been but one state ticket—the Democratic. In Wisconsin the Socialist ticket appears under the name of the Social Democratic party, to conform with the elections laws of the state. In Minnesota, for a similar reason, the Socialist party appears on the ballot as the Public Ownership party.

In many of the states proposed constitutional amendments, laws, questions, or propositions will be voted upon. Oregon, Kansas, Arizona, Wisconsin and Michigan will vote on a proposed amendment to give the franchise to women. Colorado has a long list of proposed new laws to be passed upon by the voters, and Oklahoma will decide the troublesome question as to whether the state capital shall be Guthrie or Okahoma City.

Many of the states will elect legislatures that will have the naming of United States senators. A total of thirty-three seats in the United States senate will be at stake in the election. Of these eighteen are now occupied by Republicans and thirteen by Democrats. Two vacancies, caused by the death of Charles J. Hughes of Colarodo, and the enforced retirement of William Lorimer of Illinois brings the total up to thirty-three.

AGED WOMAN IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

Clothes of Mrs. Tracy, Who Resides West of Woodson, Catch Fire When She is Putting Wood in Stove.

While putting some wood in a stove at her home, five miles west of Woodson, Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock, Mrs. Tracy, aged 87 years, was seriously burned and although she is getting along as well as could be expected, her condition is considered quite serious.

Mrs. Tracy resides with her son, John Tracy, and her daughter and when Miss Tracy left the house for a few minutes Mrs. Tracy started to put some wood in the stove when her clothing caught fire. Her daughter had just started to return to the house when she heard Mrs. Tracy's cries for help and she rushed into the room, took up a bucket of water from the table and poured it on the flames, extinguishing them. Although the fire was soon extinguished it was not before Mrs. Tracy was quite badly burned on the right arm and side, the clothing being practically burned from that part of the body. Dr. R. R. Jones was called and gave all aid possible to relieve the sufferer and Thursday night she was resting easily.

The burns are quite deep in places and Mrs. Tracy was in a state of semi-consciousness after midnight Wednesday. The burns are regarded as more serious on account of the patient's advanced age and her condition is considered quite serious

A GREAT REVIVAL.

A great revival recently closed at Blue Mound chapel, near Decatur. For several weeks the evangelist, Rev. Anna Shively, of Chapin, has been conducting this meeting and old residents of the town say that the revival was the greatest in spiritual power ever known in the history of the church. Many evenings during the services they commenced half or three quarters of an hour before the time annuonced on account of the large audiences assembling so early and on other nights there were many people who were turned away. There were fifty conversions and many members of the church renewed their interest and allegiance. On the last night of the service each convert and others who had joined the church wore white carnations. The night the evangelist left Blue Mound a large company gathered at the depot and as the train pulled out sang "God Will Take Care of You."

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE

Etiology has Proved that Dandruff Is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

PHILIPPINES THEME AT LAKE MOHONK

Sanitary Conditions in Islands Are Discussed—Prof. Willis Talks on National Sincerity in Dealing With Islands.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Colonel L. M. Maus, Medical Corps, U. S. A., delivered an address today before the Lake Mohonk Conference of Friends of the Indian and Other Dependent Peoples. His subject was "Sanitary Conditions in the Philippines" and he said in part:

Little attention was paid to sanitation by the Spanish authorities during their control, and Manila at the date of the American invasion resembled European cities in the sixteenth century. Health matters as late as 1898 were administered by a third-class official one of whose principal duties was collecting fees for death certificates.

The archipelago was frequently visited by Asiatic cholera, which swept off hundreds of thousands of the natives, and it is said that in 1888 three thousand of the inhabitants died daily in Manila during the epidemic. The habit of the natives of eating with their fingers out of a common family tray or bowl was a great factor in spreading disease.

Health Measures.

Soon after the arrival of the Americans, municipal, provincial and insular boards of health were established, and health laws passed. Vaccination against smallpox was made compulsory, and over 3,000,000 of the inhabitants were vaccinated. A census was made of the lepers of the islands, a leper colony established and their segregation effected. Bubonic plague was present in Manila in 1900. A crusade was inaugurated against the rats of the city in 1901, and hundreds of thousands of rats were killed. The dead rats were labeled and sent to the laboratory for microscopical examination with the number of the house from which they were obtained. All premises on which diseased rats were found were closed for occupancy until disinfected and put into habitable condition. By this means several thousands of the old stone houses were placed in sanitary condition.

One of the most productive causes of disease formerly was a bad water supply, taken from surface wells which were badly contaminated with amoeba and other parasites. To remedy this artesian wells have been driven throughout the islands, and now parasitical and intestinal diseases are rapidly disappearing.

Dealing With Philippines.

Prof. H. Parker Willis, of George Washington university, delivered an address tonight before the Lake Mohonk Conference of Friends of the Indian and Other Dependent Peoples. His subject was "National Sincerity in Dealing With the Philippines," and he spoke in part as follows:

The great trouble in the Philippine problem has been the unwillingness of the American public to ascertain its own mind regarding the issue. The nation has been unconsciously and unintentionally pushed into the colonial experiment at the outset, and various difficulties have been thrown in the way of withdrawal. Yet the nation has never yet been willing to consent to conscious colonial exploitation, but has invariably shrunk from it. Today it is necessary to drop this attitude of evasion and equivocation and adopt a straightforward, sincere national policy, either accepting the colonial system as such and announcing an intention of remaining indefinitely in the islands, or else positively going on record through congressional action in favor of withdrawal at some specified and reasonable time.

If the country should adopt the former alternative it will subject us to international contempt for the abandonment of our fundamental and frequently announced principles, while such national policies or principles as the Monroe doctrine and Asiatic exclusion will necessarily be thrown overboard because they could no longer be safely and securely maintained. The cost of such an announcement is too great even to be thought of.

As for an announcement of an independence policy it would immensely simplify the present problems of government in the islands, would restore the confidence of the natives and place us in a favorable position in other ways. It would hazard nothing, inasmuch as such a measure as the Jones bill does not provide for any immediate independence, but defers such action until the end of a specified and reasonably long time, during which preparation in all suitable ways can be fully made.

The question is fundamentally moral in its nature and can be properly answered by anyone who is willing to examine it as a problem in international conduct. As such it presents more a test of American capacity to apply governmental principles than of the capacity of Filipinos. It should be dealt with as a matter of American political morality.

OVER A PRECIPICE.

Nerve Racking Experience of a Hunter In the Tyrol.

BETWEEN HEAVEN AND EARTH.

Perils the Daring Adventurer Braved to Rob a Golden Eagle's Nest of Its Young and the Anxious Hours He Spent Dangling In Terror In Mid Air.

An Englishman who was spending his vacation in the Tyrol learned that a pair of golden eagles were ravaging the valleys of poultry and small game and found that they had their aerie on a certain mountainside. Being of an adventurous disposition he obtained the services of several woodcutters and started out before dawn determined to capture the young eagle that was believed to be in the nest.

When the party ascended the mountain and looked over the edge of the perpendicular cliff they could see a ledge about 100 feet below them. One of the party remained at the top while the others lowered themselves to the ledge by means of a rope.

Here they fastened a fifty fathom half inch rope to the stump of a tree, fixed a block of wood against the edge of the cliff for the rope to run over, fastened an iron hook in the crevice of the rocks and prepared to lower the Englishman to the aerie, which they could now see far below.

A stout leather belt was fastened round his waist, with an iron ring in front, through which the rope passed. To the end of the rope a strong piece of wood was knotted, and the Englishman seated himself astride it.

With a rifle on his back, a revolver in his pocket, a big knife in his belt and a long pole in his hands he was ready to start. Five men took hold of the rope, while two others lay flat upon the rocks, rifles in hand, looking over the edge of the cliff. If the old birds should attack the intruder his life would probably depend upon those two rifles.

The descent lasted ten or fifteen minutes. Then the Englishman found himself opposite the eagles' ledge. He jerked the signal line. He was ten or twelve feet from the ledge, but with the hooked end of his long pole he was able to draw himself in and presently was gazing cautiously over the edge of the nest, which, to his surprise, contained not one eaglet, but two.

One of them, not without a lively struggle, he put into the canvas bag he had brought for the purpose. The other he finally managed to secure by running a noose over its feet. He tied the bag to the signal cord, arranged himself upon his wooden seat, took the second bird in his left hand and gave the signal. The men on the ledge above, contrary to instructions, gave a vigorous pull that wrenched the pole from his hands and sent him away from the cliff at a frightful pace. The return swing was likely to dash him against the rock with deadly force.

There was but one thing to do, and the Englishman had the presence of mind to do it. He tilted the upper part of his body backward and his legs forward and struck the rock with his feet, with no worse result than a paralyzed feeling in his legs and a twitching sensation in his back and loins.

Just then a dark object flashed by him. It passed in such close proximity that the man felt the rush of air produced by its flight. At first he supposed it to be a falling stone, but presently he perceived that instead of being drawn upward he was quite stationary.

One hour passed, then two, and still he hung motionless at the end of the rop. He could of course form no idea of what had happened. The strange situation finally got upon his nerves. He imagined that he had been abandoned and must swing there till he lost his hold and fell to his death or until the parent eagles should return and pluck out his eyes. To add to his misfortunes, a sharp thunderstorm came on that wet him to the skin and nearly blinded him with lightning.

At last, when he had hung thus between heaven and earth for more than three hours, he felt a tug upon the rope and in fifteen minutes was at the top with his two prizes.

Then he found that the falling object was the block on which the rope had run. It had had to be replaced, lest the rope should be cut by the sharp edge of the rock, and the long delay had been caused by the necessity of sending the one man at the top down to the base of the mountain to cut a small tree and make a second block.

Buying Tea In Shanghai.

An American tourist, in pricing tea in a Chinese store in Shanghai, was surprised to find that he could purchase five pounds of a certain kind of tea for $2, but that if he bought ten pounds the price would be $5. The American argued with the Chinaman that such an arrangement was ridiculous, but the proprietor of the store insisted that logic was on his side. "More buy, more rich. More rich, more can pay," he explained.

Drawing the Line.

"From this point," said the man in the front seat of the automobile, bringing the machine to a stop, "you get a good view of Pittsburgh proper."

"I'm sure," spoke up the prim matron in the back seat, "that's the only part of Pittsburgh we wish to see!"—Chicago Tribune.

It is not enough to run. One must start in time.—French Proverb.

25 Cent "Danderine" For Falling Hair And Dandruff--Grows Hair

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

FOUNDERS DAY AT WOMAN'S COLLEGE

MEMORY OF INSTITUTIONS EARLY FRIENDS HONORED.

Addresses Made by Bishop McDowell and Dr. J. C. Nate—Closing Session of District M. E. Conference Held—Resolution Adopted.

The morning meeting of the stewards and ministers at Centenary church was well attended by the above named gentlemen. Dr. Harker spoke briefly and Dr. Horace Reed told of his work against vice and impurity, painting in glowing colors, the evils which beset the young and unwary and the dire iniquities of the infamous white slave trade.

Rev. J. W. Miller of Grace M. E. church talked on church finances and especially commended the duplex envelope system which he regarded as a solution of many of the difficulties in church finances. When people give regularly, systematically and often they become educated to giving and do it easier and with cheerfulness always.

Dr. Nate told of the early struggles of the founders of the Woman's college and read from the history which told of the Herculean efforts made to raise a needed $30,000, to save the plant from foreclosure by mortgage in the early days.

Resolutions Adopted.

We, the pastors and district stewards desire to express our sincere gratitude to the officials and pastor of Centenary church for generous entertainment, and to the Brotherhood of Grace with Dr. Miller, their pastors for courtesies shown to Dr. Harker and the Woman's college for hearty co-operation and to the people who have so kindly entertained us in their homes and to the press for generous favors. Also to Bishop McDowell for his strong and helpful addresses and to Dr. Zaring for his efforts to reach us, and last but not least to our new District Superintendent, Dr. McCarty and his wife for their generous hospitality in entertaining us at dinner and in other ways making our stay both pleasant and profitable.

A. N. Simmons,
J. P. Edgar.

The failure of Dr. E. Robb Zarring, of Chicago, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate to be present was a great disappointment but the train on which he should have arrived at 7:06 failed to get in till nearly ten.

The meeting was closed with the benediction by Dr. Horace Reed and all adjourned to the music hall of the Woman's college where Founders' day was to be observed. It was indeed fine thus to pay honor to the men who did such grand work in establishing the college, formerly an academy, and the tribute to their work was fine. Dr. Harker presided and on the rostrum sat Dr. T. J. Pitner, representing the present board of trustees, Bishop McDowell, Dr. J. C. Nate, secretary of the educational forward movement, Dr. McCarty, district superintendent and Dr. J. M. Miller, representing the churches of the city.

The following was the program:

The Program.

Doxology; Creed; Gloria.
Hymn—"Faith of Our Fathers."
Scripture—Memory Selections.
Scripture reading.
Prayer.
Address, "Building on the Foundations"—Dr. J. C. Nate.
Music, vocal solo, "With Verdure Clad" (Haydn)—Miss Beebe.
Founders' Day Address—Rev. Wm. F. McDowell, D. D., LL. D.
Music—College song.
Closing prayer and song.

Dr. Nate Talked of Building

In introducing Dr. Nate Dr. Harker said the brother had been promoted to the secretaryship of the educational forward movement. The gentleman said in brief:

No joy is greater, deeper, sweeter than going home. Thirteen years ago Bishop McDowell founded his paper, the Christian Student, and its usefulness has been great. One cannot read certain passages in it without feeling how important to the work of the church and the uplift of society is the cause of education. We believe in the christian school, the christian church and the christian home, the christian student and the christian parents, the christian children. That was the idea of the founders of this instiution which was begun to further the cause of christian education. The difficulties under which they labored were great and yet they accomplished wonders and shall we with our improved abilities and opportunities fall short of their achievements?

In 1847 they did smaller things than we do and yet it meant far more effort for them than what we aim to accomplish will mean for us. They wrought and suffered; they deprived themselves of comforts and almost necessities that they might found an educational institution. Old Peter Cartwright sent $5.00 to McKendree college and expressed his mortification at its smallness and said he would torment the churches till they gave more.

In 1862 the institution had to raise $30,000 or be sold out and then came the time of sacrifice. On a salary of $750 a year Mr. Prentice gave $1,000 and others did in the same proportion and the sum was secured and they now challenge us to do as well. They wrought under great difficulties. Today the railroad and interurban would enable us to gather very soon and the telephone would reach many who couldn't come but how different it was then.

It has been said that the schoolmaster is more important than the school, so twenty years ago Jacksonville found the schoolmaster and he was introduced as the city's little educational giant and he deserves the title (applause). You will not have him always so do your best while he is here and let us emulate the noble example of the founders whose memory we honor today.

Bishop McDowell's Address.

With words of commendation Dr. Harker introduced Bishop McDowell who was received with hearty applause. It is with regret that so short a report of the address is made but lack of space makes it necessary.

"Next to being a founder I would rather praise the founders after they are dead. I recall a story of a house where the head, namely the wife, the first lieutenant, namely the husband, were having a sharp discussion over the question of marriage. It was the second venture for both when the daughter said she would rather be number 2 alive than number 1 dead.

It was Thomas Arnold of Rugby who said we are not superior to our fathers and we are woefully inferior if we are not superior. It is only an Irishman who says a thing like that. So were are not superior to Peter Cartwright, Peter Akers, W. D. R. Trotter and many other worthies and we are woefully inferior to them if we are not superior.

It was not the expectation of the founders to establish a college but it has grown to that and like Paul today we should look back on the good fight and forward to the crown. The institution today is far ahead of anything the founders ever dreamed of. The test of good work is such that your successor will do better. I started one paper some time since and when the last number I received was numbered volume 34 I began to feel it was a good while ago and the Student is now 13 years old and if I had kept it it might be a suggestive year as they send me a volume each year bound in red morocco for you know a paper must be read (red) (laughter).

My successor in the secretaryship of the educational movement is doing better than I and so on all down the line and we must do better work than the founders.

The eloquent speaker paid a glowing tribute to the founders and urged all present and all who would be in touch with the institution to rise to the opportunity and do grand things for the college. His effort was greeted with long continued applause.

The idea of the Illinois Woman's college seems first to have taken form in the mind of Rev. Peter Akers. Closely associated with him were Rev. Peter Cartwright, Rev. John McElfresh, William Thomas, William Brown and Matthew Stacy.

Dr. Akers drew up a memorial to the Illinois conference of 1845, asking the establishment of such a school, but for some reason action was postponed until the conference of 1846.

During the session of the Illinois conference held at Paris, Ill., Sept. 23, 1846, Bishop Hamline appointed the following board of trustees with power to secure a charter:

Among prominent visitors here for the Founders' Day exercises were Mrs. Hortense Bartholm Robeson of Champaign, Dr. Horace Reed of Decatur and Mr. Dunbar of Mt. Sterling.

Rev. Peter Akers, Rev. Peter Cartwright, Rev. W. D. R. Trotter, Rev. William J. Rutledge, Rev. William C. Stribling and William Thomas, William Brown, Matthew Stacy and Nicholas Milburn.

These men met in the Methodist Episcopal church at Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 10, 1846, and organized by the election of Rev. Peter Cartwright, president; William Brown, secretary, and Matthew Stacy, treasurer.

In 1847 the first charter was secured as the Illinois conference Female Academy.

In 1851 the second charter was obtained as the Illinois Conference Female college.

In 1863 the third and present charter was obtained as the Illinois Female college.

In 1899 the name was changed to the Illinois Woman's college. The presidents of the college have served as follows:

Rev. James F. Jacquess, D. D., 1848-1855.
Rev. Reuben Andrus, D. D., 1855-1856.
Rev. A. S. McCoy, A. M., 1856-1858.
Rev. Charles Adams, D. D., 1858-1868.
Rev. Wm. H. DeMotte, LL. D., 1868-1875.
Rev. Wm. F. Short, D. D., 1875-1893.
Rev. Joseph R. Harker, Ph. D., 1893—.

BATHING IN AGRA JAIL.

Just Like "You Scratch My Back and I'll Scratch Yours."

One of the humorous sights of India, says a contributor to the Wide World Magazine, is the daily bathing parade in a native prison. In the one we witnessed were youthful habitual criminals, varying in age from nine to fifteen years, taking their daily dip at Agra jail. While the governor watches proceedings from the shade of a tree the prisoners, each man fettered and carrying a bowl of beaten brass or steel, are led out in double file to a stone pavement, on each side of which runs a shallow trough of water.

At the command of a native warder bowls are filled and waistcloths are washed. At a second order the prisoners scoop water over themselves and then sink smartly to their haunches, one behind another, in parallel lines. Again comes a snappy order from the warder, and each man begins vigorously to rub the back of the fellow in front of him. When the warder judges the "massage" is complete his voice brings the two lines to a smart right about face, still on their haunches, and the vigorous rubbing begins again, each man doing for his fellow what his fellow did for him.

The process, while comical, is a genuine illustration of the saying, "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours," except, of course, to the prisoners whose fate brings them to the head or tail of the line, where they receive only half the "treatment" of their fellows.

COSTLY COLLARS.

They Cost $300 Apiece In the Days of Queen Elizabeth.

Starch was never heard of in England until after Queen Elizabeth came to the throne. This statement may sound a little startling, but it is quite true nevertheless. Elizabeth's father, bluff King Hal, was the first English monarch to wear any sort of neckband. That was very plain, about an inch in depth, and made of lace. Yet only fifty years later an author of the times, Henry Peacham, writes:

"He is not a gentleman nor in the fashion whose band of Italian work standeth him not at least three to four pounds. Yes, a seamstress in Holborn told me that there are some of threescore pound price apiece!"

Fancy paying such a sum as $3,600 a dozen for one's collars!

The original of the present starched collar was the ruff. In the year 1564 Queen Elizabeth first used a coach. Her coachman came from Holland. He was a man named Boenen, and his wife brought with her from that country the art of clean starching.

Soon afterward a certain Mme. Dinghen came from the Netherlands and started a laundry with clear starching in London. A very good thing she made of it, for the daughters of worthy citizens crowded to her to learn the art, and she charged them £5 apiece. Five pounds was a lot of money in those days—equal to at least $100 of modern money.—London Answers.

Vegetable Gluttons.

Sundews, common in English marshes, are sufficiently knowing to distinguish between various substances presented to them. Offer them a nice scrap of tender beef, and in a couple of hours they will have concealed it from sight. Try them with a piece of chalk or a tiny pebble, and they remain stolidly immovable. Wet the chalk and offer it again, and the plant apparently mistakes it for meat, the bristles gradually closing round it; then, discovering the deception, they gradually relax and return the chalk without thanks. These vegetable gluttons will absorb morsels of poached eggs and mutton chops, but cheese turns the leaves quite black and finally kills them.

His Prescription.

Boerhaave, the greatest doctor of his time, was anxious that it should go forth that even the most eminent doctor is somewhat of a "humbug." He carefully handed the key of a small diary to his executor, bade him open it immediately after his decease and let the contents go forth to the world at large. When the notebook was opened all its pages but the last were blank, and on that final one there was written in large letters "Directions to Patients: Keep your feet warm and your head cool and trust for the rest to Providence."

Did She?

"Do you know anything about hypnotism?" asked the fluffy haired girl of her friend in the pink gown.

"Well," replied the fluffy haired one as she held up her left hand to display a sparkling solitaire to better advantage, "you can judge for yourself."—Judge.

Wanted a Lower Key.

Spatts—My love, I wish you would alter the key of your voice. Mrs. Spatts—What's the matter with it? Spatts—Oh, nothing; only from the expression of Eliza Jane's face after our recent argument I'm certain it fits every keyhole in the house.

An Apt Illustration.

"Pa, what's an inscrutable smile?"

"It's the kind, my son, your mother had on her face this morning when I told her business might keep me out late tonight."—Baltimore American.

Making the Laws.

"Don't you think we have laws enough already, senator?"

"Oh, yes, but if I don't let 'em know what I'm here for I'll never get here again."—Atlanta Constitution.

POSTPONE CAMPAIGN FOR PASSAVANT

Hospital Trustees Will Seek Funds Desired at Some Later Date—Nurse's Home Will Be Built With Money Already Subscribed.

The folowing letter was addressed yesterday by Rev. G. L. Shively to the Board of Trustees of Passavant hospital and explains itself. It has been determined to postpone the campaign for $50,000 for rebuilding purposes until a later time. The $10,000 already donated will be utilized in building a nurses home.

Letter to Trustees.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 24, 1912.

To the Executive Committee of Trustees of Passavant Hospital:

Gentlemen:

In response to your invitation I have now devoted one week to a consideration of the feasibility of instituting a campaign for funds to build a suitable home for the nurses serving in the hospital or matriculating in the training school, and also for the construction of a larger and better equipped hospital building proper.

While no general appeal has been made for money, it is a great pleasure to record that the first part of your proposed program has already been achieved through the munificence of your vice-president, and soon the Nichols' Nurses Home will be a gratifying source of civic pride, as well as a great recruiting agency mustering many refined, intelligent young women into the ranks of these ministering angels.

After due consideration I believe it best to temporarily postpone the quest for funds for the second part of your program, but would not encourage long delay.

The members of the executive committee and the entire board of trustees will require a brief while in which to realize "the responsibility of the crown" they wear. The position each holds is of great honor and very significant to the welfare of countless lives and accepted perfunctorily but in the spirit of a self-sacrificing minister to the higher needs of the communtiy. That spirit should find expression in a willingness to give gladly and largely and to solicit gifts of others in fulfillment of the cherished hopes of a few fond hearts longing to make Passavant Memorial Hospital, a source of greater blessedness to more of earth's sufferers.

I would recommend to the churches and their ministers and officiary greater interest in the welfare of the hospital. The churches should regard this as one precious means of access to the hearts of men they dare not ignore. If their representatives on the board of trustees are not actively employed in the diffusion of the mercies of the hospital, they should at once substitute apostles of the Great Physician.

I believe the hospital is well located. Agitation for removal will cease with the erection of the Nichols' home and the peril of gifts conditioned on situation be obviated.

I find here an erroneous sentiment to the effect that the hospital is for the benefit of the physicians rather than their patients. A little time will eradicate this sentiment and the people be made to know their gifts are not for the well paid doctors but the sick, many of whom are striken amidst surroundings precluding all hope of recovery without the aid of the modern hospital. This is true of the rich who can pay his proportion of the hospital expenses and of the many poor who can pay nothing. Yet every physician within tributary territory should contribute most generously to this cause helping to realize his professional ideals.

Many good, local interests are clamoring for money at this time. I believe a little later we can get a much better hearing for our plea.

I rejoice to assure you Passavant Memorial Hospital is held in high esteem by your citizens and in their hearts most tender affections. They will most nobly respond to your call for help. Hundreds will regret this brief delay in the inauguration of the hospital's greater area, I am recommending.

If under the more favorable conditions I have above indicated I can serve you, you will find me

Your obedient servant,

Geo. L. Snively.

Lewistown, Ill.

I wish to thank all the officiary of the hospital for unfailing courtesies during my stay with you. I shall defer to your judgment in the matter of continuing the campaign.

The Magic of September.

September seems to me to be the fairy among the months of the year. She is so crowned with gold, so full of play and magic spells, she has no work to do, and it is she who transforms the green woods and gray marshes to wonderlands of fairy fire and brings the great pale moon back round and full night after night into the skies. Yes, September has a magic! —Hildegarde Hawthorne in St. Nicholas.

Faithful to the End.

The Better Way.

"Don't put any of 'em in a basket," replied the enterprising dealer. "Put 'em in cold storage."—Washington Star.

WATER WILL BEAR YOU UP.

Always Remember This and Learning to Swim Will Be Easy.

You can teach yourself to swim, and you can do it in an hour or less. I know plenty of people who have done it by following carefully these directions:

First and foremost, fix this thought clearly in your mind—the water will bear you up. It is fear and struggle that invariably send a person to the botfom. The best way to acquire confidence that makes for courage and fun is, go squarely and reasonably at it. Begin in still water; the old swimming pool on the farm is just the place. Wade out until your shoulders are covered, squat a little and get yourself wet all over.

Don't be the least atom afraid, even if a little water does get into your nose and ears; wade out a little farther until you are up to your chin, and now your toes will begin to leave the bottom of the pool. Do not be alarmed. This shows you that you are a little lighter than the water. Now lift your chest and with the muscles of your stomach breathe deep, stretch your arms out to form the letter T of yourself, stiffen your backbone and hollow your back as though suddenly you were a very important and dignified person. Your toes have come up to the surface now. Lean your head back freely as far as you can, keeping your mouth shut.

Lie back with absolute confidence, and there you are floating. Keep your backbone stiff, gently paddle with your hands, and you are swimming. Make toward the shore, of course. Then try it all over again. This time kick with your feet gently; strong strokes might turn you over and frighten you. Keep your balance and practice two or three times in straight succession.

The next thing that you will be learning is the "V" stroke. Kick out until both legs are like the letter V, shut them together like the blades of a pair of scissors (which give a strong drive ahead), then draw them up sidewise like a frog and kick persistently out again. Then try making your legs go as if you were climbing up stairs. Always remember the water will bear you up, and the great and only difficulty about swimming will be out of your way.—Christian Herald.

BOTH WELL INFORMED.

An Interchange of Compliments Between Grant and Lee.

Toward the end of the war between the states the value of a well organized scout service came to be fully appreciated by the leaders of both armies. Perhaps no commanders of modern times were better served in this respect than General Grant and General Lee. Both were kept informed daily as to nearly everything that went on within the enemy's lines.

General Gordon related that one morning toward the end of the long conflict, when the Confederates, officers and men alike, were reduced to unpleasant straits for food, a captain from the Union headquarters went, under a flag of truce, with a communication to General Lee concerning the exchange of prisoners.

"General Lee," said the captain, with a smile, after delivering his message, "General Grant sends you his personal compliments and bids me assure you that he knows exactly what you had for breakfast this morning."

"General Grant must be misinformed as to this," replied General Lee, surveying the message bearer with a sad smile. "General Grant is a generous man, and if he had known with what a breakfast I had to content myself he would certainly have sent me half of his. But give him my compliments," he continued, with a sudden twinkle, "and say that although I do not know as to his breakfast I have full particulars concerning his dinner last night."

Use For the Thermometer.

"That new maid is a genius," said the young housekeeper. "She has even found a use for the cooking thermometer. Nobody ever used it to cook with. After I finished my course in the school of domestic sciences I bought a splendid thermometer because the teachers said I ought to. I paid $5 for it. It had a solid iron bulb and was warranted to stand any amout of wear and tear. In spite of my determination to cook by rule that thermometer was a white elephant in the kitchen until the new maid came. She uses it to crack nuts with!"—New York Times.

A Queer Slip.

The Duke of Wellington once made a queer slip during a house of lords debate on Ireland. In the course of his speech he mentioned that two clergymen had been murdered in Ireland.

A noble lord on the other side of the house rose at once to correct him. "No, no; only one."

"Only one?" rejoined the duke. "Well, if I am mistaken I am sorry."

In Her Own Coin.

Mamma—You naughty boy! What do you mean by saying "Don't bother me now" when I asked you how you got your clothes soiled? Tommy—That is what you always say when I ask you something you don't know how to answer.

Doing Enough.

Jimpson—I'm gawing to Europe next week. Can I do anything faw you ovah theah, deah boy? Gimpson—No, going's enough, thanks.—Town Topics.

Maid—Did you call me, ma'am? Mme. Parvenu—Yes, I just wanted to tell you that I didn't need you just at present.—Fliegende Blatter.

A WORLD MYSTERY

Early Civilization of the Twin Continents of America.

THE SECRET OF THE PACIFIC.

A Riddle Still Unsolved Is the Origin of the Ancient Toltecs, Aztecs, Mayas and Incas—The Enigma That Lurks In Their Ruined Monuments.

"The Secret of the Pacific" is the title of a book which deals with one of the great mysteries of the world—the origin of the aborigines of the Americas. The author—C. Reginald Enock, F. R. G. S.—answers his own question, "What do we mean by the secret of the Pacific?" thus:

"Set between the world's mightiest oceans, the Pacific and the Atlantic, lies that greatest of all islands, the twin continents of America. A great mystery still shrouds these twin continents, a riddle still unread, for whose solution the world may be said to have waited 400 years. What is this mystery?

"History will have us believe that until the end of the fifteenth century these great seas had roared defiant, uncrossed by man, with the exception, grudgingly admitted, of some shadowy northmen from Europe, and that these great continents have been unvisited ever since the world began. Yet scattered for thousands of miles throughout the forests and deserts of these twin continents are the remains of civilized empires which once flourished there—the ruined temples, palaces, pyramids and habitations of peoples and nations who rose, fell and rose again ages before the caravels of the vikings and the conquistadores turned their prows toward the setting sun.

"What I have ventured to term the secret of the Pacific is the mystery surrounding the ancient civilization of the Americas, the homes of the Toltecs, the Aztecs, the Mayas, the Incas and their predecessors. What was their origin? What was their connection with each other? Had they any link with the old world? Did they in olden times draw inspiration and knowledge from Asia, Egypt, Babylon? If not, and they sprang unaided from their own soil and created their own culture, what are or were the conditions of their independent development?

"It has been my lot to traverse, at least in part, those great regions of North and South America forming the western world which we have erroneously termed 'new'—the ancient world of America before Columbus. My travels have taken me upon the trails of Cortes and Pizarro, trails which in some cases are almost as remote and difficult today as they were when first traversed by the white man from Europe and the horse first ascended the Andes.

"But to these journeyings we must add other incursions through space and time, both real and conjectural, which will take us from Mexico to Egypt, from Peru to Babylon, from the American shores to the strange islands of Polynesia. From those broad regions where the Toltec, the Aztec and the Inca flourished we must seek to gather up those threads which some have conjectured lead to Asia.

"What are the monuments left by these ancient peoples, and what are the evidences of their civilizations? For 4,000 miles or more they lie upon the western American littoral and Cordilleras and seem to extend in isolated patches across the Pacific ocean in a northwest path to Asia, like vast stepping stones between the old world and the new. In the rock ravines and scorching mesas of Arizona and California, wildernesses whose trails were first mapped out by the bones of hardy explorers, are the abandoned habitations of the cliff dwellers.

"On the high slopes and tablelands of Mexico are strange pyramids and mysterious courts and quadrangles, with carved stone halls about them, a puzzle to the beholder. In the dense tropic forests of Yucatan are the sculptured facades of palaces and pyramid temples of exceeding beauty and ingenuity, ruined and abandoned or surrounded here and there by the wattle huts of half savage Indians.

"In Central America sculptured stelae of great beauty and peculiarity protrude strangely from the jungle, while far away below the equator, along the scorching coast line of Peru and amid the bleak tablelands and snow crowned ranges of the Andes, are cunningly wrought temples and impregnable fortresses, which could only have been fashioned under the mandates of ruthless new world pharaohs or devout American Solomons.

"In the Mexican desserts and by the waters of the mysterious Lake Titicaca of the Incas the sun god and the moon god held sway, and centuries ago unnumbered ancient worshipers raised great temples to the 'unknown God.'

"Deepening the mystery still, there arise strange and grim upon solitary sea girt Pacific islands in the track of the setting sun colossal images and fortresses whose origin no man can conjecture. Here, in brief, are the chapters, written in stone, of some great and perhaps universal history—a history which so far we have not been able to inscribe in the general plan of human record. This, then, is the secret of the Pacific."

He is not only idle who does nothing but he is idle who might be better employed.—Socrates.

AT THE GRAND.

The story of "Green Stockings," in which Margaret Anglin is to appear here next Monday, shows the result of a girl's innocent white lie. Celia, daughter of William Farady, had been obliged to wear green stockings for several times at her sister's weddings, and when the chit of the family announced that she was going to get married, and that Celia would have to buy another pair of stockings, poor Celia rebelled, and in desperation told her father and sisters that she too was engaged to an army man who had gone to Africa to fight for his country, and that was why he could not be produced. After Celia had sent a paragraph to the London Times, anouncing the death of the fiance and in the midst of receiving the family's condolences, who should arrive on the scene but Colonel Vavasour, who said he came from the deathbed of the fiance, of whose existence Celia had never dreamed. Miss Anglin will be supported by a fine company and she brings with her a splendid production.

David Garrick's Ways.

David Garrick was a Celt and Anglo-Saxon combined, and that is why he was so successful an actor manager. That also explains why he was careful, even parsimonious at times, in small matters, but ever ready to give freely. "He had," says his latest biographer, in an almost regretful tone, "a beautiful habit of sending back I. O. U.'s with such words as 'I beg you will light a bonfire with the inclosed'"—beautiful indeed, and very rare. Johnson declared that whenever he drew Garrick's attention to some case of distress he always received from him more than from any other person and always more than he expected. "Sir, he was a liberal man. He has given away more money than any man in England. There may have been a little vanity mixed, but he has shown that money is not his first object."—"David Garrick and His French Friends."

The Holiday Headache.

The severe headache which often follows a long railway journey or a protracted tour of a museum or a picture gallery is usually wrongfully attributed to bad air. As a matter of fact, says Dr. Sidney Stephenson, such headaches are more often than not due to the fact that the eyes have been overworked. The cure is not a cup of tea nor a bottle of smelling salts; it lies in a pair of spectacles. From exactly the same type of headache clerks, typists, dressmakers and students are great sufferers. In the great majority of these cases, says Dr. Stephenson, examination has shown that weak and overworked eyes were the cause of the trouble, which has disappeared with the use of a pair of good spectacles.—Pearson's Weekly.

Foods That Bind Little Children

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Hence, avoid what seems to constipate the child, or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this is not meant a physic or purgative, for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentlest of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, which in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So many things can happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Catching cold, piles, headaches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it, among them the mother of Albert Adison Spence, Reeds Springs, Mo., and Mr. Frank Nagel, Notary Public, Dorchester, Wis., who buy it regularly of their druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value and it contains proportionately more.

ALBERT ADISON SPENCE.

Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-griping and free from injurious ingredients.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 413 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

GENERAL MARKET NEWS

WHEAT MARKET WEAK FROM START

Closing Prices Were Easy ⅞ to 1c Under Last Night—Corn Shows Net Decline.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Heavy selling of wheat today resulted mainly from lower cables, the effect of less tension concerning the influence of the Turkish war. Closing prices were easy, ½ to ⅞@1c under last night. Corn showed a net decline of ¼ to ¼@⅜c and oats a loss of ⅛@¼ to ¼c.

The outcome for provisions varied from a setback of 10c to an advance of 5c.

Weakness in the wheat market prevailed from the start. Export demand had ceased and the foreign financial tone was reported to be unimproved. Turkish victories counted somewhat in favor of the bears. In addition there were advices of a flattering outlook for the Argentine crop. Prices suffered also because of the lack of support from shorts, who as a rule had been forced to cover on yesterday's advance.

Chances of a rally in wheat received a check through signs that much of the Duluth stock would be brought to Chicago by boats. December ranged from 92⅞@93⅞ to 93⅜; closing ⅜@1c down at 93c.

Fine weather brought about an easy feeling in corn. Wheat weakness formed another aid for the bears. December ranged between 53¼ and 53⅝@53½c, with last sales ¾c net lower at 53⅜c.

Disappointing cables took the edge off the oats market. Outside limits for December were 32⅝@32⅜@32⅝c. The close was ¼c from last night.

Unloading on the part of longs carried down provisions the only exception was for October ribs, which wound up at an increased cost of 5c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York, Oct. 24.—Almost the only noteworthy feature of today's stock market was its stubborn resistance to a series of bear attacks. From the very outset the short interest adopted an aggressive attitude finding flight encouragement in the state of the foreign markets, but moderate support invariably resulted in general recoveries. The selling movement concentrated against U. S. Steel and Hill issues, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley, later embracing some of the minor specialties and American Can. Reading was the strongest of the railway group with some demand for New York Central.

Prices wavered uncertainty in the late session, but a mild flurry in call loans, which rose to six per cent, caused another set and an abrupt halt to the activity than in progress, but support was again effective in restoring the general level to a fraction over the preceding day's close.

The sudden rise in money occasioned no surprise in view of the condition of the local banks. The cash loss to the interior, chiefly through the sub-treasury, totals about $9,000,000 thus far with indications of a further decline tomorrow. Time money was firmer on the increased demand, but rates were unchanged.

The rise in the German banks discount rate from 4½ to 5 per cent was in keeping with last week's advances by the English and French institutions.

LOCAL INSTITUTE.

Wednesday afternoon the pupils and patrons of Clayton Point, Durbin and College Grove schools met at College Grove to the number of 150 and held a local farmers' institute of much interest and pleasure to both pupils and patrons. Each school put up $10, two dollars of which went to the County Institute to be held at Waverly on Friday and Saturday of this week, and eight dolkars was distributed among the pupils of each school as prize money for the best entries of farm and garden products, needle work and cooking. There were 106 entries and 62 prizes were awarded to the pupils having the best exhibits. Mr. L. O. Berryman placed the ribbons on the corn and explained the points of the score card for judging corn, while Mrs. Hattie Rees selected the winners in the domestic science class. The teachers, W. E. Mann of Durbin, Miss Zella May Scott of College Grove and Miss Emma E. Scott of Clayton Point, are to be commended for their interest and co-operation. All departed for home feeling that the time had been well spent and hoping it would be possible to do even better next year.

I. O. O. F. HELD BIG MEETING IN CITY

MEMBERS OF ORDER FROM EIGHT COUNTIES IN ATTENDANCE.

Public Meeting Held in Central Park Attracted Large Audience —Work Was Exemplified in Evening at Armory Hall—Meeting Next Year to be Held in Beardstown.

The sixth annual meeting of the Central Illinois Odd Fellows association held in Jacksonville Thursday was a very successful event and was attended by hundreds of Odd Fellows from various points in the eight counties comprising the district. A special train from Beardstown brought a large number from that place and points intermediate and the scores of visitors who came in on regular trains. Fifteen automobiles took some of the visitors for a ride beginning at 11 o'clock, the feature being in charge of J. D. Reynolds. At 11:30 o'clock the balloon ascension and parachute leap attracted attention.

The public meeting took place at 2 o'clock in Central park with E. H. Kinney of Beardstown presiding. The formal program was preceded by a splendid concert by the Jeffries concert band. At five o'clock a school of instruction was conducted in Odd Fellows hall under direction of A. M. Blood of Chicago, chief instructor in work. The evening meeting was held in Armory hall commencing at 7 o'clock when the work was exemplified in the iniatory, first and second degrees. I. O. O. F. hall was open all night and lunch was served at midnight. Altogether it was a day of great importance in the realm of Odd Fellowship.

Balloon Ascensions.

The balloon ascension given at 11:30 o'clock by Olan Edwards was very successful. The balloon sailed gracefully to the north and Edwards made his descent without mishap in the yard back of Jensen's store on North Main street. The balloon fell on the building of Nunes & Son marble yard. In the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Edwards was not so successful and just as the balloon started up a great hole was burst in the tow and the aeronaut with the parachute and ropes attached to it landed in a nearby tree. Edwards had a lucky escape as he might have fallen on the pavement and would have been seriously injured no doubt. The ascension was started ahead of schedule time and the result of the incident was that Judge Sherman who had just started to speak was speedily almost without an audience. People however soon came back around the speakers stand but it was determined to declare the afternoon's program at an end.

The afternoon program was as follows:

1:00-2:00—Concert by Jeffries concert band.

Address of Welcome—Rev. W. E. Spoontz.

Response—Rev. G. W. Morton, Beardstown.

Music—Illinois School for the Blind orchestra.

Address, "Fraternity"— Hon. L. Y. Sherman.

Music—Illinois School for the Blind orchestra.

Addres sof Welcome.

Rev. Mr. Spoonts said in part:—I am glad and happy to welcome you to this city today on behalf of this noble order in the name of Friendship, Love and Truth. This order which has, with passing years, come to be a living force in all the world is growing wonderfully in Illinois. During the past year 5,000 members have been added to the roll and so we have a vast army of men bound together by the three golden links. I welcome you too in the name of the Rebekahs of whom there are 36,000 in Illinois standing with us. Their numbers having been augmented by 1700 during the past year. This order needs no commendation from me or you, for the work that it is doing speaks for itself. I welcome you today also in behalf of this beautiful city which is second to none of its size, in the state of Illinois.

I have some facts and figures which speak strongly of the work which the I. O. O. F. is doing. During the year past $171,170.34 has been expended in relief work. $5,252.21 has been distributed among the widows of Odd Fellows and during the year $25,000 has been expended at the Orphan's home. During the same period $20,000 have been given to the Old Folks home at Mattoon. This order is strong and flourishing today because it has done so much for the upbuilding of four institutions which have been the main strength of this country: the family, the free church, the free political system and the free school. The work and the teachings of our order have done much for widening the influence of these institutions. I would that all the world could see the drama that we enact upon our lodge floor.

Rev. G. W. Morton, pastor of the Christian church at Beardstown, and Noble Grand of Ark lodge of that city made the respons . Mr. Morton told several laughable stories and then expressed the pleasure visitors had in coming to this well ordered city with its business houses, schools and churches and commented upon the fact that there are 900 Odd Fellows in Jacksonville and vicinity. The speaker expressed the hope that Oddfellowship would continue to grow in its usefuiness and thanked his predecessor for the generous words of welcome so eloquently expressed.

Grand Master Spoke.

W. A. Hubbard of Carrollton, Noble Grand for the state of Illinois was next introduced by the chairman to speak upon the subject "Our Homes." He said in part: In this vast order we now have a membership of 1,600,000 beside the Rebekah membership of 500,000. The order is but 93 years old, yet in that period of time it has grown to be the greatest in point of numbers and wealth. One reason for its growth is the fact that the order has recognized that the home is the bulwark of our strength. Today there are fifty homes of various kinds in this country owned by the I. O. O. F., caring for 3,800 people and representing an investment of four and one-half million. If we did nothing more than this work we would be entitled to the honor and respect of the people at large and the greatest protection from the government of the various states. Were it not for these homes the people we are caring for would undoubtedly be charges upon the state.

At the home for orphans at Lincoln we have a fine farm of 150 acres and five buildings and another building is now in course of erection at a cost of $36,000 and which will care for seventy-five more children. We not only clothe and feed these children but we are educating them too along useful lines so that when they come out from the institution they shall be fitted to take and active part in the work of life. The enrollment there is 178.

In the Old People's Home at Mattoon there are 128 old people cared for. The work there should commend itself to us specially and demand our tenderest care. There are a good many homes in the country where children may receive care but the homes for the aged are few. We own a fine property there of 164 acres.

When I think of how little per capita all this good work really costs us I am almost ashamed. The homes are maintained at a per capita cost of $1 and so you can remember that you are contributing thirty cents a year in maintaining the orphans home. These facts simply illustrate that together we can do much while divided we could do little. We can all join in an effort for universal peace and join in the hope that the day will come when all the world will be joined in recognizing the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God and so we as Odd Fellows shall write our names on the hearts of men."

H. M. Blood of Chicago, chief examiner and instructor was introduced and made a brief announcement about the school of instruction. The chairman next introduced Hon. L. Y. Sherman to make an address on "Fraternity." The speaker said that no man lives to himself and that each one is dependent upon the other and was outlining in a general way the spirit which led to the founding of fraternal societies when the balloon accident happened and he brought his remarks to a close. This completed the program for the afternoon.

Evening Session.

At Armory hall in the evening there was a great gathering of Odd Fellows to see the work exemplified. The lodge was opened under the auspices of Illini Lodge No. 4. The initiatory degree was exemplified by Arcadia lodge and in the prize competition the cash prize of $25 was awarder to Arcadia.

The work of the first and second degrees was put on by a team made up jointly of members from Illini and Urania lodges. The work of the teams was such as to frequently call forth applause. The candidates who took degrees were Lawrence Sibert, first; R. J. Hankins, first and second; Wm. Schildman, first and second; Carter Clark, second; Harry Cully, first and second; C. E. Waters, Nortonville; C. B. Webster, Beardstown; J. C. Rexroat, Arcadia; H. C. Busby, second; C. R. Evans, second.

Business Session.

At the business session held in the afternoon the following officers were selected: President E. H. Kinney, Beardstown; vice president, M. R. Waln, Ashland; secretary-treasurer, G. W. Morton, Beardstown. The meeting next year will be held in Beardstown on a date to be announced later.

STEVENSON'S REGRET.

The Author's Picture of the British Throne at Washington.

Mrs. Osbourne gives an interesting glimpse of Robert Louis Stevenson in conversation in the following account of his second call on Mrs. Virgil Williams:

"He had a peculiarly beautiful voice, with a rich, round, but not provincial Scotch accent. While he conversed with Mrs. Williams he paced up and down the floor in his usual fashion, with rapid and graceful motion, or hung on the mantelpiece. It was not strange that the conversation turned on the subject of the relations of America and Great Britain.

"Stevenson regretted that England had lost the colonies. He pictured the states under British rule, with America the seat of government of the whole empire. He dwelt upon the benefits that would have accrued to the whole English speaking race from such a union and to all mankind, with Great Britain and America ruling the world for peace and righteousness. In a flight of fancy and with all the richness of language that was his he pictured the actual transporting of the royal family and all the paraphernalia of government across the Atlantic, the pageantry of the ships and the gorgeous landing and the setting up of the throne at Washington.

"While Stevenson was talking Mr. Williams came in. He looked doubtfully from Mrs. Williams to the stranger, for, as he told his wife afterward, he thought a tramp had got in and she could not get him out again. But it was only for a moment and soon the two men were talking with all the interest [illegible] from that day [illegible] Virgil Williams' [illegible]

THE MOON AS WE SEE IT.

Its Mountains and Craters and Its Lights and Shadows.

The visible part of the moon is about equal to the superficies of North America. It is very mountainous, and around the vast dry plains which form the dark spots seen with the naked eye are volcanoes whose funnel shaped craters resemble old wells filled in by the deposits of ages.

Maps of the moon show more than 33,000 such craters, some of them 200 kilometers in diameter.

The radius of the earth is supposed to be nearly four times that of the moon. Proportionally the moon is much more mountainous than the earth. All the lunar volcanoes are extinct.

The moon was formed after the earth was formed. It has gone to its doom faster than the earth because, as its mass is much feebler than the earth's mass, it cooled faster. The moon's light and shade are clearly seen because it has no appreciable atmosphere.

The moon has been called the "pantheon of astronomers" because its volcanoes have been named for astronomers. Riccioli gave his own name to a splendid lunar "circus," and to a very small and insignificant volcano he gave the name of Galileo.—Harper's Weekly.

SILAGE FOR HORSES.

Interest in Silos and Silage Increasing—Important Questions Answered by Experiments—Silage and Alfalfa Make Balanced Ration.

Now that the silo is coming into general use by progressive farmers in many counties of Illinois, many important questions are being asked relative to the value of silage for feeding various animals and most of these questions are being answered by experiments at our agricultural experiment stations so that the practical farmer need waste no time nor make any mistakes in securing desired information. Recently we have received many inquiries about feeding silage to horses, and as horses are not only fed on all farms, but are more widely distributed in cities and towns, than any other kind of live stock, their feeding is of universal interest.

Objects In Feeding.

We usually have one or more of three different objects in view when we feed horses—to maintain health and condition, to enable them to expend a greater amount of energy at work, to improve their general appearance as a matter of personal pride of the owner, or to enchance their market value. While it is true that the amount of fat deposited on a horse increases his market value, it is also true that feed which will cause an economical increase in weight may be generally considered as economical in furnishing energy for work.

Silage Good For Horses.

The Penasylvania Agricultural Experiment Station recently conducted a feeding experiment with 21 horses and found that silage which is made from mature corn, is free from mould, and has not been exposed to air too long before feeding and is properly supplemented with other feeds which will make up the deficiency in protein can be fed to horses with safety when care is used to have them become gradually accustomed to it; that when fed silage as a portion of their ration they consumed less grain, made their gains at lesser cost per pound, were sleeker and better finished than when fed on rations not containing silage.

Corn Silage Economical.

Corn silage furnishes digestible nutrients at lesser cost than any other roughage grown in the state. Corn silage and alfalfa hay make practically a complete or balanced ration and thin horses may be fattended more economically with this ration than with any other and it can be produced on any farm in Illinois.—Illinois Farmers' Institute.

BASEBALL STRATEGY.

Brain Work of More Importance Than Mere Athletic Ability.

There are things in a ball game not mentioned in the rules. A team made up of players who had never seen nor read of the game and had never had any instruction outside of the rules would have no hit and run plays, no squeeze plays, probably no men caught "flat footed" off base, no double steals, no delayed steals, no shifting of the infield according to the runners on, the score and the "outs;" no signaling, no signal stealing, no hidden ball tricks, no "stalling" tricks, by which a player is led to think a ball is fielded in one place when it is really fielded elsewhere —in fact, the very heart and soul of baseball would be missing. The batter would hit or walk and patiently wait for his successor to hit or walk to advance him. Runs would be in exact proportion to hits, and outs would be made only in the stereotyped ways, and nobody would care either to play or to see the game.

So it might be said, without much fear of contradiction, that the strategy of the game, the part played by brains and wits, is more to baseball than athletic ability to run, hit, field or throw, spectacular and exciting as plays made only by strength, muscle and skill must always be.—C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

FISH THAT CATCH TURTLES.

They Are Used to Advantage by Fishermen In Cuban Waters.

In the neighborhood of Havana a most peculiar method of securing turtles is pursued. They train or at least take advantage of the instincts of a certain species of fish called by the Spanish reve (meaning reversed), because its back is usually taken for its stomach.

It has an oval plate attached to its head, the surface of which is traversed by parallel ridges. By this plate it can firmly adhere to any solid body it may choose. The boats which go in quest of turtles each carry a tub containing a number of these reves.

When the sleeping turtles are seen they are approached, and as soon as they are judged near enough a reve is thrown into the sea. Upon perceiving the turtle its instinct teaches it to swim right toward it and fit itself firmly upon the creature by means of its disk. Sooner would the reve allow itself to be pulled to pieces than give up its grip.

A ring, which is attached to the tail of the fish, in which a string is fastened, allows the fisherman to pull in his prize. By a peculiar manipulation the reve is pulled off and returned to the tub, to be ready for use the next time a turtle is sighted.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Newton's Perseverance.

Many interesting stories are related of Newton's great perseverance. Not infrequently upon arising in the morning he would sit down on his bedside and remain there for hours without dressing himself, occupied with some interesting investigation which had fixed his attention.

On a tablet in the room in which Newton was born at Woolsthorpe manor house is inscribed the celebrated epitaph written by Pope:

Nature and nature's laws lay hid in night.
God said, "Let Newton be," and all was light.

Sir Isaac told Bishop Pearce that he had spent thirty years at intervals in reading over all the authors or parts of authors which could furnish him with materials for his "Chronology of Ancient Kingdoms" and that he had written that work sixteen times with his own hand.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS

Those that make for comfort, convenience and economy and are lived up to—such are the resolutions to install gas in the home, as a means for lighting, heating and cooking. Certainly no intelligent man or woman today would be without gas unless they were where it could not be secured. As a matter of fact, people in the country realize so fully its advantages that they have imitated it by installing acetylene plants, which are extremely costly. However, for the small sum of $1.25 per room, you can have gas in your home. Why not see us today about this matter?

BIG INSTITUTE AT MURRAYVILLE

EXHIBITS BY SCHOOL DISTRICTS ATTRACTS HUNDREDS.

Keen Competition Manifested By Various Contestants for Prizes and Honors—Splendid Addresses by Mrs. Bangs and Lindsey Reese.

The Farmers' Institute held at Murrayville Thursday was the most successful ever held in that community. The exhibits and sessions were held in the Murrayville Public school building and the attendance was so large that it was difficult to move about. The prizes offered by the farmers in the various districts for the best exhibitions and the general prizes offered, were the occasion of keen competition among the various contestants.

The morning sessions were presided over by Edward Scott, president of the organization, and the afternoon sessions by Charles Story.

The morning session consisted of an address by the president followed with a solo by Miss Beulah Kitner and a recitation by Miss Emma Henry. Mrs. Bangs of Chicago gave a splendid address on "Domestic Science." The other address of the day was by Lindsey Reece of Pana, Ill., on "Soil Fertility." Mr. Reece is not a farmer on paper, but a man actually engaged in farming and for one hour and a quarter he held the big audience by his unusual timely suggestions and lessons of experience. At the close of the talk many of the visitors told him that it was the best address they ever heard on that subject.

There were six districts represented in the contest, Murrayville, Oakland, Nortonville, Pleasant Hill, Brush College and East Greasy. The prizes in these contests were awarded by the various farmers residing in their respective districts. There was also a general exhibition, where prizes were given, not only by the farmers, but by the merchants of Murrayville. In this special contests, those who had exhibits in the district were allowed to compete, so in every way the interest was marked with much enthusiasm.

The following is the list of prize winners in the various district exhibits, first money being $1.50 and second, $1.00.

Wesner, Mrs. H. B. Rimbey and Mrs. Pauline Story. The exhibition in the pop-corn department was warmly contested, there being over 12 exhibitors. Edward Scott, the county president, gave a talk in the afternoon on the subject of corn judging and there was also on the afternoon program a selection by the "Short Kids" and a piano solo by Willard Wesner. In the district exhibits, Pleasant Hill was the banner winner. Not only did they have farm products, on which they were to receive prizes, but they had also decorated their booth with other things raised on the farm for which no prizes were offered. J. H. Dial and C. Justus Wright, made the entries and labelled them. A splendid dinner was served by the ladies of the Baptist church. The Murrayville people have every reason to feel proud of the magnificent showing made and the institute was the best held in the county.

LANDLORD ACCUSED OF MAN'S MURDER

Woman Interrupts Inquest Proceedings With Direct Accusation of Murder.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—It was supposed that Joseph Waitkus had committed suicide when his body was found in his room in a South Side rooming house. A revolver said by his landlady to have belonged to Waitkus was found beside the body.

An inquest was being held this afternoon when a woman rushed into the room and halted the proceedings by shouting:

"Stop! stop! He did not kill himself. He was murdered. There stands the man who killed him."

The man indicated was Joseph Brudas, the husband of the woman from whom Waitkus rented his room. The jury was just about to return a verdict of suicide when the interruption came.

The woman was Mrs. Anna Rober who declared the revolver found beside the dead man had been purchased by Brudas. Brudas was held by order of the coroner and an investigation ordered into the story of Mrs. Rober.

SHERMAN SEES REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

Judge L. Y. Sherman, who received the endorsement of voters at the last primary for the United States senatorship from Illinois, believes that conditions are improving for the success of the Republican ticket at the November election. Judge Sherman has been taking an active part in the campaign since August 5 and has been in all parts of the state. In conversation yesterday afternoon he said that he firmly believed that the state Republican ticket will be elected. He said that a study of the Deneen administrations proved that the affairs of Illinois had been well managed under the present governor and that a great many Democrats will vote for him. Further he suggested that Judge Dunne has made a mistake in referring to the Altgeld administration for the record made was not at all creditable to the Democratic party. Speaking of national politics Judge Sherman said that in the past two weeks that President Taft had made decided gains in Illinois. One reason for this he considers to be the fact that business men and farmers have looked into conditions and are finding that prosperity prevails, that conditions are favorable to business men and are being convinced that the affairs of government have been well ordered under the present administration.

Judge Sherman commented upon the changes which have taken place in campaign methods during recent years. He said that he had addressed audiences on campaign issues when he could not tell whether they were pleased or dispieased. He attributes what might be called apathy in some audiences, to the fact that the people are so well informed on all issues the discussion of such matters now being given so much more space in newspapers and magazines than was formerly true.

SUITS FILED.

Two suits were filed Thursday for hearing at the November term of the circuit court. J. P. Ransdell has entered foreclosure proceedings against Albert Revis.

DEATH SUMMONS AN OLD SOLIDER

Robert L. Wyatt, who has been seriously ill at his home in Murrayville, passed away Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the family residence in Murrayville. He had been in declining health for a number of months, but his serious illness dates back to August 14 of this year, when he suffered a paralytic stroke. This was followed by another stroke a few days later, which left him almost helpless and without speech. His strong constitution fought desperately against the disease and in the hopes of benefiting his health he was taken several days ago to the Old Soldiers' home in Quincy. He was only there a few days when he wanted to return to Murrayville and his wish was granted. He has been dangerously ill for the past two days and death has been expected almost hourly.

He was born one mile west of Murrayville, February, 1838, being 74 years, 7 months and 24 days old. He had always made this his home until eight years ago when he moved to Murrayville. He was married March 29, 1860 to Miss Belle Tunnell and she survives him, with the following children, Horace of Woodson; Logan of Kildare, Oklahoma; Bert, Larimore, N. D., Walter of Chicago. Two daughters and one son preceded the father in death. He also leaves two brothers,, M. V. Wyatt of Jacksonville and Marion of Parsons, Kansas.

Mr. Wyatt of Jacksonville and Marion of Parsons, Kansas.

Mr. Wyatt enlisted in Company F. of the 101st Illinois infantry, August 7, 1862. This company was organized in Jacksonville at Camp Duncan and was mustered into the United States service by Capt. Charles Ewing of the thirteenth infantry. The company went to Cairo where they remained a month and later made their way down south. This company participated in some hard fought engagements, doing duty along the Mississippi river and later over into Georgia, Tennessee and South Carolina. On Jan. 17, 1865 the army crossed over into South Carolina, and went through the great campaign of the Carolinas, participating in the battles of Averysboro and Bentonville. On March 24 they entered Goldsboro and on April 13, Releigh, where the regiment remained until the final surrender of the rebel army. Mr. Wyatt was mustered out of service June 7, 1865 as sergeant, after having participated in the "grand review."

After returning from the war Mr. Wyatt followed the occupation of a farmer. He was a man of jovial disposition and of strong determination for that which was right and honorable. He had a splendid memory and could recall and tell minutely, events of the war and his stories were ever heard with renewed interest. Many will miss "Uncle Bob" Wyatt from the walks of life but his memory will ever be cherished for the valiant deeds of love and sacrifice he did for the country he loved so well, and for his honest life as a citizen of this great commonwealth.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Kurt Garten Von Nobelsdorf, who says he is a count, tried to commit suicide today in the county jail where he is held on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He tied a rope made of torn strips of blanket around his neck and to the top of his cell, and was about to leap from his bed when a guard saw him.

He said his attempt on his life grew out of his disgrace and the fear that his relatives would hear of it.

The members of the Ladies Sewing society of the First Baptist church, were entertained Thursday by Mrs. Sarah Shumaker, at her home six miles south of the city. It was a typical autumn day and the drive was much enjoyed.
